DETAILED ACTION

Specification

1. The lengthy specification has not been checked to the extent necessary to determine the presence of all possible minor errors. Applicant's cooperation is requested in correcting any errors of which applicant may become aware in the specification.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 1-4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by U.S. Patent No. 4,264,856 to Frierdich et al.

Frierdich et al. clearly teaches the construction of system for maintaining excitation of an alternating current generator during excessive output current conditions comprising:

a voltage detecting means (47) for detecting a voltage of an output terminal of a synchronous machine which is connected to a power transmission system (lines 13, 15, and 17) through a transformer (25); a reactive current detecting means (27) for detecting a reactive current output from the synchronous machine;

a voltage setting means (41, 43, 45) for setting a reference voltage of the output terminal of the synchronous machine according to:

the reactive current detected by the reactive current detecting means, a reference voltage of an output side of the transformer, a phase compensation transfer function to quicken attenuation of an electric power fluctuation, and by the voltage setting means based on the voltage of the output terminal of the synchronous machine detected by the voltage detecting means; and a control means for controlling an exciting system (35) of the synchronous machine according to a difference between the reference voltage set by the voltage setting means and the voltage of the output terminal of the synchronous machine detected by the voltage detecting means.

3. With regards to claims 3 and 4, Frierdich et al. disclose (from column 3, lines 65 to column 5, line 3) an excitation control method, comprising:

detecting a voltage of an output terminal of a synchronous machine which is connected to a power transmission system through a transformer, and includes setting the reference voltage of the output terminal of the synchronous machine based on the voltage of the output terminal of the synchronous machine; detecting a reactive current output from the synchronous machine; setting a reference voltage of the output terminal of the synchronous machine according to the reactive current, a reference voltage of an output side of the transformer, and setting a phase compensation transfer function to quicken attenuation of an electric power fluctuation; and controlling an exciting system of the synchronous machine according to a difference between the reference voltage of the output terminal of the synchronous machine and the voltage of the output terminal of the synchronous machine.

Conclusion

4. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. See PTO-892.
